Don't you feel sometimes that you are simply acting? Don't you ever feel that you are something else inside and something else outside? Doesn't the awareness of this hypocrisy torment you in an awakened moment?

Man is a slave inside. His freedom is only on the outside, on the periphery. You are given enough rope to feel that you are free, that's all; but you are tethered, in a bondage.

That bondage is so psychological and so subtle that one never becomes aware of it. Society teaches you to be imitative. It creates a false self in you. It says, 'Be like Jesus, be like Buddha'; it never says to you 'Be yourself.' It always gives you an ideal to follow and whenever you follow an ideal you are going against yourself. You are imposing a mask on your real self. Creating a personality and thereby losing your individuality. And that individuality is your real soul.

There are things that are taught in schools but life needs something else. Confusion arises, conflict arises, contradictions go on getting together and then pull you in different directions- then you are no longer together, your unity is lost. A child is born as an organic unity. By the time you have become young, you are no more an individual, you are no more a unity. You are a crowd, a mad crowd.

This is something you have learned from others. And that which you have learned can be unlearned. That which you have learned from others is nothing natural to you: you can erase it. Just a conscious awareness is needed; it can be erased and the slate can become clean again. So the first thing is to erase all that has been forced on you and only then will you be able to listen to your own heart's voice.

The heart's voice is very still and very small. The mind's is very noisy: it goes on shouting things. The heart whispers- the mind shouts.

Your father used to shout at you. Your mother used to shout at you. The teachers in the school used to shout at you. The mind shouts. Life speaks in whispers. First this shouting has to be dropped, otherwise it is very difficult. But they put the outside voice in you at such an early stage that it seems as if it is your own heart's voice.

One thing is certain: you can never become anything other than yourself, and unless you become yourself you cannot be happy. Happiness happens only when a rosebush grows roses; when it flowers, when it has its own individuality. You may be a rosebush and trying to flower as a Lotus- and that creates the insanity. Erase the mind; the way to erase it is not by fight: the way to erase it is just to become AWARE. If you become aware then sooner or later you will have to drop all falsities and assert your true being.

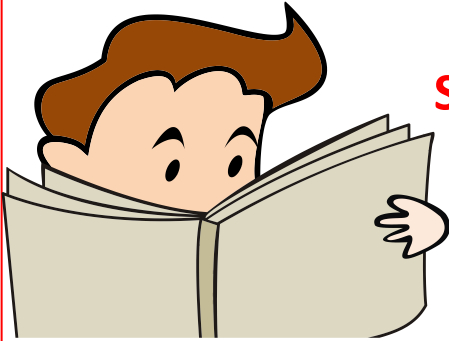

So be YOURSELF! The bliss of being one's own self- that is the only bliss there is. Bliss is a shadow of being authentic, true, sincerely your own self.

Software Defects Preventions Technique-5

Rajnish M

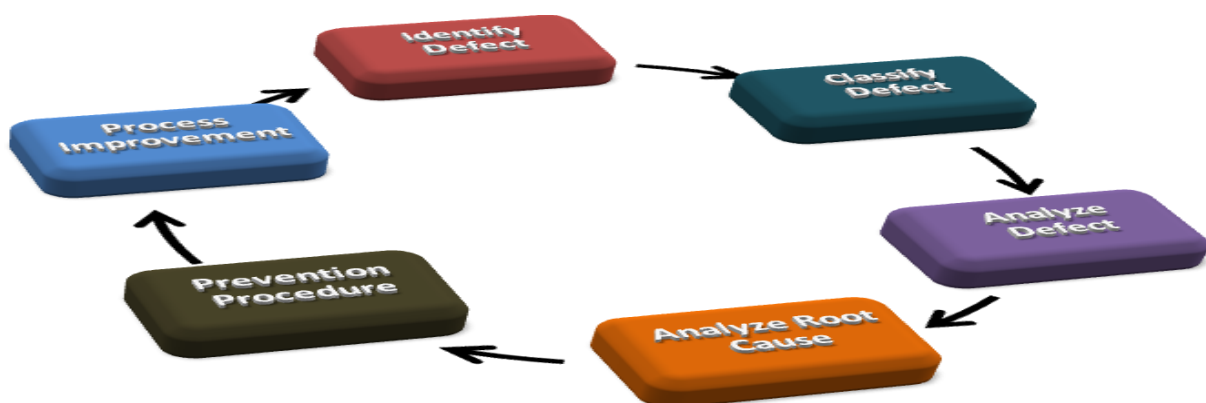

Planning & preparation phase are the most important phase to prevent defects. During the test execution phase, focus is to execute all planned test cases to catch defect going into next phase.

Some of the Steps that can prevent defect going into next phase or production are:

Execute all test cases – Executing all planned test case will ensure product quality and catch all defects. RBT testing approach can be taken for test coverage if running out of time.

Defect Analysis - It is important that we log all defects in the defect management tool and most importantly to set up the defect management tool as per the need for collecting data. These data should be analyzed for continuous improvement for next phase or release. Root cause analysis session should be conducted along with lesson learned session. All steps for improvement should be implemented for consequent phase or release that will help preventing defects.

Defect prevention is a cyclic process which should be practiced continuously in SDLC to achieve the planned goal.

In the picture above it is clearly depicted the cyclic process of defect prevention in test execution phase. Following quality improvement process is a key to prevent defect.

In this article I have focused more on defect prevention in SDLC by improving strategic & tactical process. There are several newer tool and technology in the market that helps expanding the test coverage in return preventing defects. I will try to focus on tools in future articles.
